- Complete programming of Rescue Medication Summary in a diabetes study
- Involves creation of parameters to check if a subject reached a specific visit interval
- Involves creation of parameters to check if a subject took rescue medication in the same intervals defined for visits above
- Programming involves:
  - Creation of full template of visits using output statements
  - Creation of cartesian product to populate all parameters for all subjects
  - Usage of cartesian product to check if records fall in a specific interval